AI Overview

Firefox does not have a built-in export button for browsing history. To export it on macOS, you can either install an extension like History Export to download a `.json` file, or import your history into Apple Safari and export it from there. Apple Support +3

For a visual guide on using Firefox's Library panel to manage and access your history before exporting:

How to Import and Export History on Firefox

Quick Guides

YouTube · Dec 18, 2020

Method 1: Using a Firefox Add-on (Simplest)

1. Open Firefox and go to the History Export Add-on page.
2. Click Add to Firefox and confirm the installation.
3. Open the browser's menu (three horizontal lines in the top right corner) and go to Add-ons and Themes.
4. Click on the History Export add-on and navigate to the Options tab.
5. Click Export History to download your browsing data as a `.json` file. Firefox Add-ons +1

Method 2: Importing to Safari and Exporting to CSV

1. Open Safari on your Mac.
2. Go to the top menu bar, click File, and select Import From Browser > Firefox.
3. Select History and click Import.
4. Once completed, your Firefox history will be merged into Safari's history. You can then use a third-party Safari extension or manually select and copy the items from the Safari history menu to paste into a spreadsheet. Apple Support +3
